To Life...IN THE SMALL CORNERS:

a book that is so much more than just a book

"This book confirms for me that in my nearly four decades of news reporting from the world's capitals I missed the best story, our human family...in the small corners." -- Bernard Shaw, former CNN news anchor

They say that every picture tells a story. If that's true, this book speaks volumes, and more. In a collection of magnificent photographs to be sure, captioned sparingly with just the perfect selection of beautifully expressed reflections, author/photographer Carol Scribner takes us along on her travels through Asia and Africa to the most remote areas on our planet to experience an extraordinary journey into everyday life...in the small corners.

Compiling neither a travelogue nor textbook, Scribner explains, her mission was to take the reader where she's been, to some of the most exotic places on our globe, and to introduce us to some of the remarkable people who live there, enabling them, through her photographs, to reach out from the page and touch us as they have touched her. One need only spend a moment with this book to know she has succeeded.

For those of us old enough to remember, references to Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos may only bring back headlines of war-torn countries on the other side of the world. Africa may conjure up pictures of heat and sand and abject poverty. But To LIFE...in the Small Corners puts faces on the people, faces rich in culture and tradition, faces full of hope and dignity. Beauty reminiscent of National Geographic...with soul.

And why is this book more than just a book? Because it gives back directly to the people it features. Proceeds from the sale of To LIFE...in the Small Corners will be donated to an organization called TurtleWill, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to help the peoples of Mali, Ethiopia and Niger preserve their cultures, independence and self-sufficiency through education, mobile medical clinics, startup loans for women's cooperatives, food cooperatives and much more.

To LIFE... truly a book one can feel good about owning.

About the Author: Carol Scribner comes from an eclectic background. She has been a professional pipe organist, registered nurse, Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) consultant, and CEO/Founder of an advertising, marketing and communications firm, representing such companies as Procter & Gamble, Merck, Lilly, Smith Kline, Upjohn and Fujisawa. An award winning documentary writer, producer, director and photographer, Carol has combined her talents and passions to inform, educate and motivate the public about issues of health and quality of life throughout her career. She and her husband, Dr. Larry Decker, make their home in Sedona, Arizona, but travel every chance they get...to the small corners.
